ACTION WEEK • OCTOBER 16 - 22, 2016

Please take a minute to participate in this year's Right Care Action Week by answering the question, "What worries you most?". Your voice will help foster important discussions and reflections needed to make positive, meaningful change in the healthcare system.

The Lown Institute's Right Care Alliance initiative is the first grassroots social movement that brings together health professionals, religious and community groups, and the public. Together we are working toward a society in which the right care is accessible by all. We believe this will be made possible through a collaborative process that engages local healthcare institutions and the community in the stewardship of resources for health.
