

We're sick of high health care costs! Are you?

Every year, more than 500,000 Americans go bankrupt because they cannot afford their medical bills. From surprise out-of-network costs to prescription drugs, Americans are paying out the nose for medical care – and we cannot afford it.

Right Care Action Week October 15-21

www.rightcarealliance.org

Join clinicians, patients, and community members and across the nation in exposing, protesting, and sharing stories about high health care costs. And don't forget about the Digital Citizen Hearing on October 21st from 12-1 pm EST when RCA members from across the country will meet online to discuss what they've learned from Right Care Action Week, and reveal our new national campaign!

How you can participate:

- Right Care Café: Get together with friends, neighbors, and colleagues to gather evidence of expensive costs and talk about potential solutions.
- Listening Booth: Set up a table at a hospital, fair, farmer's market or anywhere in the community to talk with people about their experiences with health care costs.
- What Worries You Cards: Pass out cards in your hospital, classroom, community center, etc., that ask people to identify their biggest worries around health care costs.

Make sure to follow us on Twitter @RightCareNow and use #RCAW17.
For more information and resources, email rcaw@lowninstitute.org.

