

Dear Eli Lilly & Co.,

On June 27, 2017, my son Alec Raeshawn Smith passed away from diabetic ketoacidosis. He was alone and I believe he did not go peacefully, which hurts me to the core.

I will never get to see him fall in love, marry the woman of his dreams and raise a family. I will never get to see him tackle the dreams he had. I will never get to spend another Christmas or birthday with him.

This MOTHER'S DAY, will you pledge that no more sons and daughters will die because they can't afford your insulin?

Nicole Smith-Hott
